

I strongly oppose the weakening of Indiana's law in support of telephone privacy. Even with the law I still get far too many unwanted calls from charities, political groups or others (several a day). If the law were to be weakened and this number increased, about the only remedy would be to get an unlisted number.